

A PLACE TO CALL HOME: Addressing Housing Instability –

Supporting Young Children and Families in Connecticut

The Office of Early Childhood (OEC), Behavioral Health Initiatives will be hosting a multi-state agency webinar focused on addressing housing instability to support families in Connecticut. Having safe and secure housing is critical for children's development and well-being.

A Place to Call Home will offer perspectives from the State Department of Education, Department of Housing, and the OEC. Panel members will offer insight into the Head Start on Housing Program, a program unique to CT and the first in the country, which has already successfully homed 45 families. Learn more about the impact housing instability has at both a state and national level, and be connected to resources and supports to better serve CT's children and their families experiencing housing instability.

The session will include:

- Opening remarks from Barbara Duffield, Executive Director at SchoolHouse Connection
- Engaging panel discussion
- Special message from Elena Trueworthy, Deputy Commissioner with OEC
